

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

JULY 15, 2010

Proving once again that our members are more twisted than a bag of pretzels... The Wootown Brewers homebrewing club proudly announces its inaugural BJCP-sanctioned brewing competition, Barley Legal.

Barley Legal is a BJCP-sanctioned competition open to homebrewers worldwide. The competition is based in the Mid-Atlantic United States (MD, DC, PA, DE, VA, and WV) and, for 2010, celebrates the tradition of German Oktoberfest. For the 2010 competition, Wootown is accepting German styles only, but the definition of German-styles is very wide open and defined on the Barley Legal competition web site. Homebrewers are encouraged to whip out their Weizens, rock their Bocks off, or go straight to Helles.

Entries for the competition will be accepted from Saturday, September 11, 2010 to Saturday, September 25, 2010. Entry requirements are posted online, as are drop-off and mail-in locations.

The competition judging will be held on Saturday, October 2, 2010 at 9 a.m. at DuClaw Brewery in Abingdon, MD. Wootown is currently seeking judges, stewards, and volunteers for the competition.

Competition winners will receive prizes and awards donated from notable sponsors in the homebrewing, craftbrewing, and food and beverage industries worldwide. Results on the competition will be posted immediately after the votes have been tallied. Information on how to become a sponsor is available on the competition web site.

Downloads for the competition, including our eye-catching posters, press releases, and videos may be downloaded from the web site as well.

Who will take home the coveted first-ever Mug O' Sausage? Sprechen Sie Deutsch? We hope so.
